

I've always love to work at my schedule pace, it helps me to focus more. Based on my work experience, I have proven multitasking ability and professional relationships which will help to drive the team goals to success.

working alone will make it easy for me to work around my time, which in the long run will help me to get work done faster and efficient. my best motivation working alone is setting my task for the day and making sure I did my best not to leave any task undone. Literally, if am making my schedule, I won't have any problem or challenges. The challenging part for me is unavailability of resources to liberate through the project; If the latter is not, I'm good to train through every challenges. Lastly, the biggest challenge might be communication with other mates, though this might not seem to be an issue cause, I have experience in my school course group project, which all members are well-off to work around the meeting schedule to meet the deadline.

I've always wanted a volunteer in the pursuit of new creative endeavors, I am excited to find an opportunity with venture for Canada. I hope to learn on professional skills and team spirit relationship. And also, to learn and sharpens my analytical career in finance using innovative approaches and improved solutions to business challenges in real life. To improves my skills and learn more about professional work setting. Knowing that I can improve my entrepreneurial skills in various learning opportunities makes me excited. however, I would also like to learn more about business/finance and entrepreneurship, so I can expand my skills in this area to help my team in achieving our purpose.

And lastly, this program will help me transform to Canadian organizational culture by developing entrepreneurial skills in the workforce that will help in solving problems from a new perspective, formulate new business models, and cultivate a growth mindset.
